What's hard right now

Be honest. One paragraph. Investors discount any update that doesn't have something hard in it.

Examples of what to say here: - "Trial-to-paid conversion is below 20%, below our 30% target. We're testing three changes to onboarding this month." - "Engineer #1 hiring is taking longer than planned. We've interviewed seven candidates, none of them right. Adjusting our channel mix." - "Carrefour conversation has paused for two weeks while their legal reviews our DPA. No movement, no risk yet."

What we need help with

If anything specific: - "Looking for a warm intro to [Person] at [Company] for [reason]" - "Looking for feedback on [specific decision]" - "Looking for a candidate for [role] from your network"

Leave this section blank if there is no specific ask. Don't manufacture an ask.

Looking ahead

Three bullets — what we expect to ship or close next month. Be specific enough that we can be held to it.

[Expected ship #1]

[Expected ship #2]

[Expected close or signal #3]

Notes on running this monthly

Cadence is non-negotiable. Skipping a month signals trouble. If a month is bad, send a short email anyway.

Length cap: one screen on a laptop. If the update doesn’t fit, cut content, don’t break the format.

No marketing copy. This is the channel where investors come to find out what is actually happening. Don’t undermine it with promotional language.

Numbers must reconcile across artifacts. The MRR in this email must match the MRR in the Key Metrics Dashboard and the pitch deck. If there’s any drift, fix it before sending.

Archive every update. Each month’s update gets saved to the data room at dataroom/1_company_fundamentals/1.4_investment_docs/updates/[YYYY-MM]-investor-update.md.

Example: how the first update will look

Below is an example of what the first real update would look like in September 2026 (M3 post-raise). Use as a template only — do not send.

Subject: écentic monthly update — September 2026

The Shopify App Store listing went live on September 4. First 23 installs in the first 14 days; first paid Connect customer from organic install on September 19.

MRR is €840 (up from €430 last month), driven by the first three Connect subscriptions from App Store organic. App Store install rate currently 23/two-weeks, ahead of our target of 50/month.

If anyone is connected to a Head of Growth at a DTC supplement brand >€2M GMV, I’d love a warm intro.
