écentic — Pricing & Revenue Model

Revenue streams

écentic generates revenue through two primary streams.

1. SaaS subscription (monthly, three-tier)

Tier	Monthly price (USD)	Monthly price (EUR, @ 0.92)	Target merchant
Connect	$149	€137	Indie Shopify merchants, GMV $100K–$1M, single store, self-serve
Compete	$499	€459	Growing brands, GMV $1M–$10M, multi-SKU, agency-aware
Dominate	$999	€919	Established merchants, GMV $10M–$50M, multi-store, multi-region

The blended ARPA across a healthy customer mix (70% Connect, 20% Compete, 10% Dominate) is approximately €280 per month.

2. Enterprise contracts (annual, custom-priced)

Enterprise pilots are positioned as 12-week structured engagements that convert to annual contracts on success. Typical structure:

Pilot fee: €0 for the first two enterprise pilots in 2026 (positioned as flagship case-study generators)

Pilot fee from 2027: €15K-€50K depending on scope

Year 1 annual contract: €25K-€75K depending on catalog size and geography

Average enterprise ACV (Year 1 target): €37,500

3. Optional revenue: agency / done-for-you audits

Catalog audits are sold as one-time engagements to merchants who want a single comprehensive write-up rather than ongoing software. This stream is positioned as “Agency as a Software” — keeping the price closer to consulting margins while fundamentally delivered through the same software stack.

Price range: €2,300 – €13,800 per audit (corresponds to $2,500 – $15,000)

Average: €5,000 per audit

Volume target: 2 audits/month at steady state (M6 onwards)

Purpose: fund runway while SaaS scales; convert audit customers into recurring subscriptions

Why this pricing

Connect at $149/mo is priced to be a no-meeting decision for an indie merchant. It’s the same range as established Shopify apps in adjacent categories (SEO, analytics, reviews).

Compete at $499/mo is the volume sweet spot — most growing brands sit here. It includes the auto-publish loop, which is the most defensible part of the product.

Dominate at $999/mo is positioned as the "agency-grade" tier. The price is low enough that a single recovered sale pays for the year of subscription.

Enterprise pricing is custom because the catalog sizes (50K–500K SKUs), security review processes, and integration complexity vary too much for a price list.

Gross margin

SaaS gross margin: ~82%

Variable cost per customer per month: AI/LLM API spend (≈€8 per active customer per month at steady state) + cloud + infra share. This scales sub-linearly with revenue once we cross 100 customers.

Enterprise gross margin: 70%–78% (slightly lower because pilots include high-touch onboarding that takes engineering hours).

Pricing power and upgrade path

The standard customer journey is:

Land on Connect via Shopify App Store (low-friction install, free scan immediately)

Convert to Compete within 60 days as soon as the customer wants the auto-publish loop active across more than 3 competitors

Convert to Dominate within 12 months as the catalog grows or the customer wants persona-based simulation and the API tier

We model net revenue retention at 110%+ at steady state, driven by tier upgrades, audit add-ons, and modest annual price adjustments.

What we explicitly do not charge for

The initial scan (this is a lead-magnet — the merchant gets one full report before paying anything)

The public UCP validator (always free, for any domain — drives top-of-funnel)

Quarterly "State of Agent Commerce" report (free download, lead-capture only)

Open-source contributions to the agent-commerce ecosystem (these increase our credibility, not our revenue)
